THE STRUGGLES OF THE ROYAL NAVY IN SUPPRESSING THE SLAVE TRADE

Grin Verlag. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 20 pages. Dimensions: 8.3in. x 5.8in. x 0.3in. Studienarbeit aus dem Jahr 2013 im Fachbereich Politik - Internationale Politik - Region: Westeuropa, Note: 1,00, Jacobs University Bremen gGmbH (School of Humanities and Social Sciences), Veranstaltung: International Relations of the 19th Century Internationale Beziehungen im 19. Jahrhundert, Sprache: Deutsch, Anmerkungen: Comment of professor: This is a very well-researched, well-argued, well-structured and generally well-written essay. Your line of argument is well-developed and plausible. I particularly like your use of sources. Your final section about limitations and further research is also well done. GRADE: 1.00, Abstract: Once the abolishment campaign started in 1806, the British increasingly engaged in persuading other countries to cease their trades in slaves, and further, by employing naval forces as of 1808 the British actively pursued the implementation of the prohibition laws in West Africa's Atlantic regions. However, thirty years after the Navy had started its counteracting work, by looking at the achievements of the Royal Navy, the British Parliamentary Committees saliently concluded that the suppression had been a failure so far. What were the difficulties the British Navy faced and made their activities considered as unsuccessful While scholars dealt thoroughly with the Atlantic Slave Trade and its suppression between 1808 and 1867, little attention has been paid to the various limitations and difficulties the Royal Navy had to operate under in the first four decades of its commencement. This essay aims to provide an understanding as to why the British Navy had achieved so little initially in suppressing the forced migration of slaves from Africa to the Americas. It will look at a variety of aspects and factors, which seem to play a significant role in exacerbating the Navy's operation until 1850. It will argue that the interplay...
