Estratto: .a greeting to the absent one. Petra does not comprehend what has happened until the bride softly enters and sees his corpse! It now seems as if the whole tempest of grief were about to launch forth in concentrated power; but a glance dispels it. From the bosom of her dead lover the bride looks up to heaven and asks that she, too, may die. At her glance the skies throw wide their gates! Radiant beams stream down--the nuptial hall is above; let the bride enter! Ah, yes, she sees the heavens already open; her eyes shine with a peace like that upon the mountain-tops. Their eyelids now close; a Higher Power has ended the contest, and her fidelity has won a celestial crown. She is with her lover in heaven. Petra kept her seat some time after the conclusion of the play. Her faith had been strengthened, and a sense of the heroic filled her soul. The grovelling things of earth were put beneath her feet, and she rose superior to fear and pain. She had a smile for all, for in all she saw her brethren. The spirit of evil, which divides man from man, lay smitten beneath the lightning stroke. All who saw her were smiling at her--she was the person who, during the play, had acted so foolishly. But in those smiles she saw only the reflection of the victory she had gained in...
